Readers of the Press may wonder where the editor, reel has gone to. Probably he has taken it with him to the coast as the last heard of him was that he was heading for Vancouver by the Ford route. If Henry holds out we think the rest will

It may be that all we can publish this week will be a single sheet, but we have met experts along that particular line who claim that one sheet in the wind is pretty good sailing in these dry days

It is gratifying to note the change that has come over this district since the recent rain have fallen. Crops which had been given up will now come through with a fair yield. In one case that came under our observation stock had been turned in for a week when the first rains came. They were then taken out and the wheat is coming right along; another proof that seasonable rains are the only final means of crop. We believe that there is a solution for the problems of the South and it is being found, right at home. Men are experimenting on their own farms and, if our information is correct we may expect to hear something of general interest and profit from the trials being made with corn, barley, rye, etc., in an effort to combat the weed menace and to put fibre back into the soil.

Another collective effort will be made toward understanding and dealing with the questions which affect our business and its future at the convention to be held in Travers on Saturday the 29th of the month.

It is to be hoped that something worth while will be accomplished, and we think it will. A serious effort never wholly fails.

The local troop of Girl Guides recently spent a week in camp on the Bow River near Cluny. A good time is reported and all are feeling the benefit of the change. The camp was in charge of Mrs N. Holden and Mrs L. H. Phillips. For the privilege of holding the two weeks camp on the reserve the Scouts and Guides are indebted to Mr Gooderham, the Indian Agent at Gleichen.

On Wednesday, the 26th, the Lomond football team motored to Champion to lose out in a match to the tune of four to none. A return game was arranged for Wednesday August ninth, during Chautauqua week, and the management are hoping to put into the field an aggregation that will turn the tables.

The local Knights and Ladies of the Elusive Pill have done considerable turf-cutting of late. On busy evenings one may see clouds of dust arising over the golf links as the devoted players wield the mighty wand and then claim the result. Referring to the habit of earth disturbance by inexperienced players, it has become a standing comment on recording the fact that he is not so rusty in recording the fact.

Some man has caustically remarked that if rolling pins were only shaped like golf clubs hubbly could sit around all the rough the most violent family quarrel without incurring the slightest chance of getting hit.

Mr Burne of the local Meat Market motored somewhere a few days ago and forgot about coming home until the Sun had long gone to rest. When he finally thought of home Lizzie refused to respond and there they were. Rumour has it, but well, Harry swears it was not the spark plugs.

Mrs Brennan and Cecelia left a week ago for New Westminster, B.C., where they expect to make their home. Mr Brennan is staying to take care of his crop and will probably go to the coast later.

Moving out of here seems to be quite an expensive proposition, as one almost invariably has the cost of a return trip to meet - they nearly all come back if they can afford to.

Milton Colwell has sold out in the East and is back home again. He used to think of the other end of the trip as home but apparently it is going to be the West.

Mrs McClung tells us something of the grip of the West in the words, -

If you've heard the wild goose honking - you've seen the sunlit plain;

If you've breathed the smell of ripe grain, dewy, wet;

You may go away and leave it, say you will not come again;

But it's in your blood, - you never can forget.

Holidays are the order of the day.

Mr and Mrs Temple and Mr and Mrs Phillips are in the South, visiting Lethbridge and Cardston and camping in the foothills. They hope to be able to spear a few trout while away.

Mrs N. Holden and Bob are spending a week or two at Carlsbad, visiting with Mrs Holden's sister.

Mrs C. Adams and family have moved out to the north ranche for a while.

In a recent controversy between Spain and Iceland the former nation has acted directly contrary to moral law or Christian ethics.

It seems that Iceland passed a prohibition law and decided to exclude liquor from her import-
s. Spain objected to this as she does a great business in wines with Iceland.

On repeated objections being made Spain delivered the ultimatum that if Iceland would not take Spain's wines, Spain
would not buy Iceland's fish.
and, since Iceland depends largely upon Spain for her fish industry it looks as though she will have to import something that her people have decided is a curse, just to accommodate the liquor interests of Spain.

Earl Grey, one time Governor-General of Canada, sounded a similar note some time ago in an address on the relationship between the White and Yellow races.

He said that, if ever
the white races are going to hold the confidence of Japan and China it will be by shewing them that our profession of Christianity is genuine, that war is not our desire, and that peace and good-will are not only a theory but a part of our practice.

The world is looking for the Christian nation that dares to be christian.

LOMOND ALBERTA, JULY 21, 1922

Twin suns have been discovered by Dr Plaskett of the Victoria Observatory

We are told that these suns are 52 quadrillion miles from the earth. The light, which travelling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, started out from these suns 5,000 years before human history commences, is just reaching us.

An aeroplane, travelling at the rate of 200 miles an hour, would require 30,000 million years to reach these twin suns from our earth. Figure it out for yourselves, we're dizzy.

At Kingsville, Ont, the other day, what seems to us a startling thing happened.

A boy visiting from the States was discovered tied to a stake with a fire burning under him. It transpired that the drastic act was performed by three boys between the age of ten and twelve years and was done because the newcomer was popular with the offended boys' girl acquaintances.

To us the incident looks like a reflection of the lynch law from south of the boundary. Any system of lawlessness is bound to reflect in the rising generation.

HI-STORY NOTES

History repeats itself.

Q: Who put the van in Vancouver? A: The lad who put the bus in Columbus.

Q: Who put the jaw in Moose Jaw? A: The lad who put the chin in China.

Q: Who put the nip in Winnipeg? A: The lad who put the tuck in Kentucky.

We heard the other day of a man who got six months for kissing a girl. He was lucky. As a rule a man gets a life sentence - she marries him.

Good Sport

☛ Don't be a "sport"—as per the vulgar interpretation associated with that term—but set about to enjoy some line of good sport.

☛ Make a hobby of some game, be it base ball, foot ball, tennis, golf, fishing or shooting. Set aside a reasonable amount of your time and devote it to your own peculiarly chosen hobby.

☛ Like David Harum's fleas, a reasonable amount of sport will keep you from "broodin' over bein' a dog." It has a most refreshing result, both physically and mentally. No more emphatic argument could be used than the bye-word of Europe, "Lloyd-George does it."
